

Praveen K. Chaudhry received his PhD in Political Science from the University of Pennsylvania. He specializes in Security / Strategic Studies, Political Economy, Global Governance and Comparative Politics. Dr. Chaudhry was a Visiting Fellow at the Office of the Executive Director (India, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh and Bhutan), International Monetary Fund (IMF) in Washington DC, and taught at Swarthmore College, Lafayette College, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Delhi. His works have appeared in The World Economy, Journal of Development Studies, Finance and Development, Economic and Political Weekly, and G24 Papers. He is currently working on two book projects "Security, Development and Democracy: A Search for Growth" and "The US and the IMF: Conditionality and Negotiations." Dr. Chaudhry has carried out extensive research / interviews and lectured in Asia, Europe and South America and currently teaches at Ohio University.